ROCK WILL HAVE JUDGING TEAMS

Judging Contest to Be Held in Connection With National Dairy Show.

Having won the championship in stock judging at the "Farmers' Convention" at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, Rock is planning to have a judging team in the state fair, the district contest and at the National Dairy show.

Selections for the judging team are being made by Jack C. Nisbet, Rock county livestock agent, and those from Rock county will compete first at the state fair.

Madison's national judging contest will be held at the National Dairy Show in Milwaukee, September 27 to October 4. The Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association has endorsed the dairy cattle judging contest for Wisconsin and has offered prizes for teams from local associations that will attend a district contest at the fair. The following fairs, namely, Milwaukee (State Fair), La Crosse, Chippewa Falls, Superior, Wausau, DePere, and Platteville.

Prize Money Offered.
Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded to the three individuals having the highest score in each of the district contests. A special prize will be offered to the winning team at each of the district contests. The winning team will be paid to the National Dairy Show by the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association. Each team will have the opportunity to compete for most liberal prizes offered by the Dairy Exposition and by the various national and state breed associations.

Local and district contests are not for the elimination of teams from the National contest, but are a means of selecting teams. It is necessary for such teams to attend the district contest in order to secure prizes offered by the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association, according to Field Murray, secretary of the organization.

Must Report Teams.
Teams selected to represent local associations at district contests should be reported to their respective county agents and to the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association, Field Murray, Secretary, Madison.

The rules of the contests are announced by Murray provide that three persons representing a county breed association or county testing association, regardless of sex or age, may constitute a team. The team may have one alternate. This team will represent and judge one breed of dairy cattle. The team will be composed of a judge, a scorer, and a professional judge. The team will be composed of a judge, a scorer, and a professional judge.

Before the contest at the district fair, contest it must have competed at some local association contest.

"Officers of community breeders' associations, cow testers, and county agricultural agents are urged to promote and support this judging program," declares Field Murray. "Each of all this program, the Wisconsin's greatest success in dairy cattle production."

Murray states that the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association has prepared a new dairy cattle judging card which will be used in the contests this summer and fall. Further information regarding the contests and rules governing them can be obtained by writing to A. O. Collettine or Field Murray, Agricultural Hall, Madison.

Walgrove, Ind., an international prize winner, should continue winning in the ring again this year.

Several new head have been brought into the herd, including a mature cow.

The Glenside head bull that has been used for several years with a 5,000 pound gain, has been obtained by the Marquart brothers at Milton Junction.

WHY GOV. LOWDEN STICKS TO COWS

Rather Be President of National Holstein Association Than U. S. Vice-President.

Since former Gov. Frank O. Lowden declined the vice-presidency of the United States because he preferred to stick by his job as president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, thousands of Americans have inquired what sort of a "cow club" it must be that needs a man of presidential caliber to run its affairs.

Lowden never being the nation's milk man than any other individual as president of the Holstein-Friesian Association. In the effort to promote the black and white breed of American Holsteins, thousands of Americans have inquired what sort of a "cow club" it must be that needs a man of presidential caliber to run its affairs.

The total all purpose fund spent for operating expenses in 1923 the sum of $586,736.22.

Maintenance of the secretary's office at Madison, Wis., cost $25,115. Disbursements at the office of M. J. Gardner, DePere, Wis., were $22,234 and the extension service at Chicago cost $202,387.

Lowden's "cow club" and his "cubicle" serve without compensation. The "office expenses" of the president were $34 for the last year.

The total all purpose fund of the United States is a mere dribble compared to that turned out by the cows in Lowden's cow club. Holsteins furnish from 60 to 65 percent of the nation's milk supply.

Lowden operates a farm in Oregon, Ill., and being president of the Holstein association is one of the reasons why the Illinois man was satisfied to go to the office of Charles G. Dawes, president over the United States senate, while he tends cows.

MOTOR TRAVEL MAY CUT RAIL SCHEDULE

Green Bay—Motor traffic on a hard surfaced highway between Iron Mountain and this city, has reduced the time required for the morning train between these two cities to such an extent that the officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad are seriously contemplating its removal, according to E. C. Dow, division superintendent here.

The railroad official stated that the average passenger haul on the train in question during the month of June was less than thirty a day, while on some days there were only three people on the train.

In the event that the train is discontinued, it is probable that it probably would be restored next fall when motor travel begins to decline.

6 BOYS IN JAIL IN EXTORTION PLOT

Wrote Letters to Wealthy Chicagoans by Wholesale Asking Money.

Chicago — Six boys ranging in age from 12 to 18, are in jail facing charges of attempted extortion, as a result, police say, of their endeavor to extort $100,000 from a wealthy family. The boys, who are charged with the extortion plot, are: Richard Lock, confessed kidnap slayer of Robert Franks, school boy son of a millionaire. The same motives, authorities believe, actuated the flood of extortion letters being sent to wealthy Chicago families. The latest extortion attempt has been admitted Edward Krug, 12, his brother Henry, 15, and Robert Olson, 16, asked last night by detectives when they received a decoy package left at an appointed rendezvous by John Ramsey, a content worker, from whom they demanded $50 in a letter he turned over to the police.

The Olson boy admitted, detectives say, he wrote the letter which told Ramsey he would be in a dangerous situation for failure to comply with the money demand, after he had read of the Franks case.

Three other boys arrested after they attempted to extort $5,000 from Jacob Franks, father of Robert, said they hoped he would readily acquiesce after his own death and accede to their demands which threatened his daughters' lives. Chief of Police Collins said last night that a extortion letters had been reported to him during the day as being received by wealthy families. Federal charges carrying pentenary penalties may be filed against the writers of the letters, which have been directed at numerous wealthy families during the last few days.

Committee Sends Part of Platform to Floor for Final Settlement

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison Square Garden, New York—Just before the battle, Mother, as it is known by the South delegates, found delegates in the convention hall filled with apprehension as to what the afternoon might bring forth. In order to keep things moving the rules committee had told the convention to go ahead with the nomination speech contest. It was an afternoon of death and disaster to the English language. Some of it reads pretty but there was little sound in the tumult and shouting.

John W. Davis.

Former U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, may be telling one on the king.

There was plenty of confusion. It was a real, genuine red hot convention. Ballots will perhaps be taken before these dispatches reach the public but as there will be no nomination on the first session, it is still not too late for comment on what is transpiring here.

H. L. Mencken, who was so completely disgusted at Cleveland, is more disgusted here. Nothing can suit him any more than a republican platform can suit Wisconsin. He is a writer and observer and editor of a magazine. One thing is sure, he is understood as being true by all and several here. Any of the candidates are ready to change anything they may have in mind in order to get the nomination. Smith, for instance, though having his chief support from the cities where wet sentiment is rampant in the ranks of the anti-republican democracy, would change and run on a law enforcement plank and platform. It is thought that he will get him votes. Mencken hits McAdoo also. Cox is wet as an ocean but his Ohio followers are opposed to the introduction of a wet plank. Mencken asserted that any candidate would accept platform no matter what it was so long as he was nominated on that platform.

When the sun came over the smoke and dirt of the East side of the city this morning and the noise in the streets told that another day had dawned, delegates found that there was to be platform news, that the committee had tolled all through the night without result and that the delegates would have to listen to a dozen or more speeches nominating candidates. They were as enthusiastic as the boys going to camp on a warm spring day. The platform was made log trouble. Fighting over the Klan clause and the League of Nations plank had been going on for some time. The League of Nations, four years ago, was a sticking point. There were many who wanted it dumped in the discard but the old Wilson followers insisted on the League being revived.

Mr. Cummings, who is chairman of the platform committee of the democratic national convention and Senator Pittman were given the task of drawing up the first draft early this morning after the sub-committee of it appointed to formulate a declaration of principles had decided to submit to the whole committee alternative proposals on both the Klan and League.

The drafting committee had managed, however, after working 11 hours, to figure on the major issues involving farm relief and prohibition declarations and were called at 11 o'clock this morning to pass upon the Cummings-Pittman draft prior to making a report to the whole committee.

With reference to prohibition, the sub-committee decided upon a declaration for law enforcement without amending the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act, and on farm relief it agreed upon endorsement of the Curtis-Aswell bill and demands for tariff reform and revision of rail and water transportation rate structures. The republican administration is vigorously criticized in the law enforcement plank.

One of the principal declarations the plank on corruption in public office was almost overlooked during the lengthy discussion of the more difficult problems, but was easily disposed of when reached. Other planks which presented few stumbling blocks and were more or less definitely agreed upon during the 11 hour session included endorsement for federal regulation and control of corporations and combinations controlling necessities with specific mention of the anthracite industry; immediate independence for the Philippines under conditions set forth in the Jones act; legislation to prohibit the "watering" of stock and improvement of waterways and highways with measures to safeguard them for the public welfare.

There was discussion in the drafting committee of recommending to the full platform committee that it put the Klan issue up to the convention, but the plan of submitting two drafts of the subject was decided upon. The hope was that a subsequent amendment which might avoid the bitterness that a floor fight would involve. Numerous threats have been made, however, to bring the issue before the convention regardless of the platform committee's decision, and E. H. Moore of Ohio, manager of the group supporting former Governor James M. Cox for the presidential nomination said last night that he intended to fight on the floor for specific denunciation of the Klan unless the plank submitted should meet his views.

Dissatisfaction with the law enforcement plank also was expressed in some quarters, being emphasized in a statement by John T. Flood of the association against the prohibition amendment, that John H. McCann of Pennsylvania was prepared to fight in the platform committee for a modification plank and it is successful to carry his cause to the convention floor.

WOULD CUT COST TANKS' STRENGTH OF ROAD MATERIAL NEARS MAXIMUM

Engineering Relatively Small Part of Expense, Says State Official.

Madison—Reduction of the cost of materials for highway construction and the cost of transportation from the production center to that where use is anticipated by H. E. Dean, assistant state geologist, as the most advisable method of cutting highway construction costs.

Engineering costs form relatively small part of the total cost of building roads, Dean declares. Freight is a heavy burden and can be changed only by use of local sand, gravel and crushed rock. Cement and steel costs are determined by factors largely beyond the engineer's control and beyond the contractor's control and in a reduction in prices or by increased efficiency, it is said. Discussing the road question, geologist Dean declared:

"The largest saving in construction cost can be effected in lowering the cost of road material and its transportation to the project. All other factors in the cost of a completed road have been cut to a point where large percentage savings are out of the question. Geologist Dean declared:

"Very little road material other than concrete aggregate is rail hauled. The use of concrete aggregate from the local pits has resulted in large savings. In 1922, 114 miles of concrete roads were built from local pits with $500,000 saving in freight, unloading charges and truck haul. For rail haul of five to ten miles, the freight cost is $2,000 to $1,500 for each mile of paving. Add to the freight cost the attendant cost of unloading and any increase in trucking cost. The total forms a surprisingly large percentage of the cost of a mile of paving.

Savings have been made in transportation by developing outside material nearer to the project than previously known material. Sometimes material of better quality has been located, thus resulting in a better grade of work being done. In a general road this reduces the cost of maintenance. Usable types of material have been found in regions thought to be dependent upon outside sources, and this has reduced transportation charges. At other times, new deposits have been developed with resulting low costs."

FARMS OF CANADA ARE PROSPERING

In Best Condition They Have Ever Been, Says Date After Long Tour.

"The Canadian farmer today is more prosperous than I have ever seen him and he isn't hoarding as much as those in the United States," said W. W. Dale, head of Janesville Business college, on his return to Janesville Thursday from a 2,000 automobile trip which he made with his family and visited his native country for the first time in eight years. Accompanying him were his wife and two children, Stanley and John. They visited Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Niagara Falls and St. Catharines. Mr. Dale was reared in Toronto and vicinity and his brother and other relatives still live there.

"Farmers are prospering, have had splendid crops and are enjoying good times," said Mr. Dale. "Indications are that they will have good crops this year. They have had enough rain and don't want much more."

Are't Land Poor.

"The farmers in Canada made a lot of money during the war, held on to it by putting in investments and didn't compound the money. They are not hoarding as much as here. They don't mortgage one farm and buy two, but have spent money in constructing new buildings and improving their farms. They engage in diversified farming."

"They have lost a lot on investments in companies that apparently were doing good business and were stable but went to the wall. Thousands of dollars have been lost this way."

"Business conditions are not so good. During the past 60 days they have begun to feel the depression that is found in this country. Businessmen attribute it to the presidential election in the United States and say that Canada is tied up a little with this country that they feel the times like we do here."

Good Highway System.

Mr. Dale found Canada had undergone a great transformation since he lived there, largely due to the motorcar. Nearly every farmer has an automobile and millions of dollars have been spent in developing a system of permanent highways to care for the increasing traffic. They have been laid out at definite distances apart, north and south and east and west.

LAWYERS AT APPEAL.

Appellate court heard today for the opening session of annual convention of the Wisconsin Bar association. A discussion of the problems of young lawyers occupied the afternoon session. Arthur H. Smith, Milwaukee, will deliver the annual president's address tonight.

OPENING OF NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

the garden, and even the usual rumbling of conversation that accompanies nominating speeches was almost entirely absent.

As Mr. Roosevelt approached the end of his speech, the thousands who packed the garden applauded more and more frequently his words at the opposition and his reiteration of the record of his candidature.

Meaning the sides on the convention floor and in the galleries had become more and more crowded with those who were to take part in the demonstration that would follow the conclusion of Mr. Roosevelt's address.

The doors of the garden had been locked to all except delegates because of the crush that continued about all the entrances after every seat and nearly every square foot of standing space had been occupied.

passing throng. Another in the group of children was five year old Baby Perry of Hollywood, the movie producer.

The demonstration had been going on for 15 minutes before the marching crowd began to move and fell into line with the band singing "East Side, West Side" in a chorus. Tens of thousands of throats, each doing its best to drown out its neighbor. The refrain of the famous old song was sent aloft through the open sky.

Few Delegates Rout.

Except for the band, the greater part of the noise seemed to be coming from the galleries, where the South westerners who had been in their places from the start were whooping away for all they were worth. Most of the delegates were in their seats, although the impression of state standards continued, unbroken.

When the demonstration had reached an hour's duration it was going as strong as ever. A few of the state standards had been returned to their places by the marchers, but most of the original company of them remained in the parade, mostly carried by men who were not delegates. A delegate's badge at this stage was a rarity among the demonstration.

Question of Time.

It was apparent that the duration of the parading and noise making was only a question of how long the Smith managers might decide to let it go on before closing down the parade. The chairman of the parade, who had been in his place from the start, was whooping away for all they were worth. Most of the delegates were in their seats, although the impression of state standards continued, unbroken.

SEEKING A THRILL BOY GETS FINE

"Getting drunk for the experience of it" was the excuse given by Edmund Treu, son of the Rev. E. A. Treu, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, for being found in a state of intoxication near the court house park Wednesday night by Patrolman Lee Sherwood.

Leading guilty to such a charge in municipal court Thursday morning he was fined $15 and costs or 20 days, by Judge H. L. Maxfield.

The Rev. Mr. Treu is attending a synod convention in Milwaukee this week, the boy told the court, and his absence he confiscated a quantity of altar wine stored in the cellar of the parsonage.

"I just wanted to see what it was like to drink a little," young Treu explained, "I tried some of the communion wine used in the church."

NEGROES HELD AS THIEVES

In other words if the issue is to be a religious one, the McAdoo delegation would prefer a "dry" Catholic to a "wet" Catholic.

Religious Feeling Deep
The demonstration on Wednesday against the Klan revealed the depths of feeling on that issue and may mean the selection of a Catholic on the ticket as vice president if not of president.

The McAdoo managers are beginning to consider a McAdoo-Walsh combination for president and vice president as one way of showing they are not controlled by the Ku Klux Klan.

The artificiality of the demonstration staged by the McAdoo people was apparent to everybody but it had a purpose just the same. It was to answer the rumors that McAdoo had lost most of his delegates. Today the Smith supporters are out to prove by noise and otherwise that they have as much strength as McAdoo and as much if not more enthusiasm back of their candidate.

Former Senator Thomas L. Watson, who was spotted as much by his length as the activity of his own supporters on the floor passing around flags and hunting in preparation for the demonstration. Every "Presidential Year" the same old bug-bear sticks his head around the corner and yells, "BOO-O-O-O."

—And those who are faint-at-heart shove their fingers in to their eyes and shakingly say, "WE can see nothing ahead."

Does he get it?

He does!

"There IS Business for the Go-getter."

People have to be born, grow up, get married and build homes regardless of the political status of the country.

"Presidential year depressions" are as out of date as the belief in witchcraft. Statistics show that every Presidential Year since 1896 has been better than the one preceding. Why should 1924 be an exception? There are no issues at stake that seriously affect business at all.

Mr. Business Man. Have a serious talk with yourself and your salespeople. Analyze your possible market and then go after it. Advertise the products that WILL sell; that people need and MUST have and you will leave the "sit-tighter" miles behind. Two recent successful sales in Janesville have proven that people WILL buy.

Use more care and thought in the preparation of your advertising copy—make every shot count. If you are not an advertising man—the Gazette's Service Department will be glad to help you and at no extra charge.
